Some took the side of the hull-dog, some of the terrier, and a general battle of brickbats and other impromptu weapons ensued, in which the doors and windows of adjacent dwellings suffered some, and in which the police were of little avail. The affair resulted in the Sabbath day, together with many heads being broked,

> POLITENESS. - The merchant of the present and next age must be a polite man. The boors have had their day. Henceforth they will only succeed where gold dollars can be picked up as the Israelites picked up manna. Competition in less fortunate places wil drive them to their proper vocation of feeding swine. Politeness is n ver a trifle, and there are no trifles in business Small things often produce mighty consequences. One morning a poor old soldier called at

The hair dresser listened to his story respectfully ing a dirty piece of paper from his pocket; "it is a recipe for making blacking; it is the best ever was seen: many a half-guinea I have had for it from the 14,240,000 officers, and many bottles have I sold; you may be 10,760,000 able to get something for it to repay you for your 8,080,000 kindness to the poor old soldier!" That dirty piece 5,480,000 of paper was the recipe for the renowned Day & Martin's blacking; and that hair dresser was the wealthy Mr. Day, whose manufactory is one of the ornaments Massilon, Ohio, were of Holborn, and whose place in Regent's Park rivals in magnificence the mansions of the nobility.
